RH bill fight may damage Church

By Armando Doronila

THE CONFLICT between the Aquino administration and the Catholic Church over birth control legislation has entered the stage of a "phony war" following a meeting between President Aquino and the bishops on Friday in which they decided to scale down the fiery rhetoric over the reproductive health (RH) bill in Congress.

By showing war, I am referring to a phrase in early World War II, the period between the German invasion of Poland in September 1939 and the invasion of France, Belgium, the Netherlands in May 1940. The Battle of France ended what Churchill called "The Very High Noon" when journalists scorned "Mr. Staring" ("the sitting war" in German) and the French called "doble de guerre" ("strange war").

Civil disobedience still a CBCP option

Bishops say they have moral authority to call for action

AS CHURCH and State moved to avert a collision, Catholic bishops yesterday said civil disobedience remained "a moral option" for Catholics if the Aquino administration pushed for the distribution of artificial contraceptives to couples who want to use them.

The bishops said they had the moral authority to call for such an action if the government proceeded as an action contrary to the teachings of the Church.

"The Catholic Church in the Philippines can do that if it decides to do that because for one thing, civil disobedience is a moral option, one of the moral options," said Jaime Sin, secretary general of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP).

Then Education Secretary Ardu Lapina also defended the book, saying that "some of the alleged errors are merely to its own grammar." The book copiers are saying you can get any book in the bookstore and someone would still find mistakes there in style or usage of words. So it's useless. And then it will lead down to what you, the author, wanted to convey in the end, it will lead down to your credibility. Because I use self-published. Your credentials are not

Poor households turned into small businesses

By Dj Yap

POOR MEMBERS of Ginepro City were trapped in a cycle.

Money from rice or corn trickled in only at the end of every harvest. For the rest of the planting calendar, the families waited, sometimes in debt until the next cycle.

Then came a livelihood project with a big loan and a seedling, and a harvest plan.

For the past four years, Kadi-luganong Foundation, Inc. (KFI) has been converting poor households in the rural communities of Marikina. Dis-

Marikina shoes fight cheap imports

A PROBLEM displaying the latest shoe collection of my first lady Imelda Marcos has resounded in Marikina, heralding a new fight by its indigenous shoe industry against a flood of cheap imports.

The situation is not just a showcase of the best of Imelda Marcos' 3,000-pair collection, but also of the craftsmanship in shoemaking in the nation's Metro Manila city where the industry was born over a century ago.

A footwear consultant, Jose Bragado, said Imelda Marcos failed to provide the Marikina shoe industry with much-needed infrastructure or financing when she was in power. For she did help in her own way.

"She did guarantee local brands. If she found a certain style, she would buy a dozen pairs," recalled Bragado, who had worked with the Bureau of Product Standards.

Marikina shoes were once famous, both locally and abroad, until low-priced footwear from countries like China and Vietnam flooded the industry over the years, said Jose Tapinas, a local business leader.

"You buy Marikina-made shoes and use them for five years, you buy Chinese shoes for one-fifth the price but you can only use them for a few months," said Tapinas, the head of the Marikina Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

Dolly Soriano, a former co-owner of the shoe museum, conceded most of Imelda Marcos' shoes were imported but added there were many Marikina shoes among her collection.

The museum was set up in 1998 as just one more way for Marikina to showcase its century-long legacy of making footwear, from humble slippers to rugged work boots to high-fashion custom shoes.

The city has also built the

Honasan, Enrile see end of 'jueteng' probe

THE SENATE is not too keen on extending its "junking" probe because the issue has come down to two choices for the Aguirre administration—undertake an all-out war against the illegal numbers game or legalize it.

Sen. Gregorio Honasan revealed that the Interalliance defense committee had combed through all the issues raised by retired Archbishop Oscar Cruz and Sen. Miriam Defensora-Santiago on corruption and justice, and it was up to the authorities to follow through on their leads.

Hansard said the hearings did silence all the post and noise of legitimizing justice, with Sir Stephen Fothergill filing a bill seeking to legitimize justice, while the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) in part is bringing the issue involving justice or public security and justice.

Last month, Cruz read a list of justice-related problems in the Senate while hearings resumed last week. He also promised work.

The list showed that France and Mexico were allegedly receiving every month $5 million to $6 million each in exchange for allowing

May books of voters

DO NOT TOUCH the books of voters used during the nationwide election in May.

The Commission on Elections (Comelec) has issued a stern instruction to stop officials at the barangay election desks from using the poll books as the platform for their presidential campaign.

Sen. Manuel Romas Jr. filed the Resolution on the Prohibition of the Use of the Polling Book by the Commission on Elections (PCT) candidate.

In a resolution, the Commission said it was "highly regrettable" that the use of the books of voters as the basis of the campaign of the newly approved applicants for registration as legitimate voters to participate in the local elections in May 1991.

"The purpose of the barangay elections, only the Election Commission and the Local Board of Canvassers List or Polling Commission/ Voters List shall be used by the board of election officials in the barangay," the resolution shall be allowed to vote and in recording the list of voters of the barangay," it said.

Applications for registration, creation of registration records and revision of the list of voters in the barangay, among others, by the upcoming body that will be subsequently assigned to organize elections and shall be assigned to the precincts, the Commission said.

The speaker invited barangay and township officials, Regional Election Officers and the board of canvassers to be held on Oct. 25 in more than 40,000 barangays across the country. Awalya

Energy agencies blame each other for Mindanao brownouts

By Amy R. Rana

ENERGY AGENCIES are blaming each other for the ongoing brownouts in Mindanao.

The state-run National Power Corp. (Napco) previously maintained that the brownouts were not due to power supply shortage, as alleged by the National Grid Corp. of the Philippines (NGCP).

Napco, a government-owned enterprise, maintains power plants that may be dispatched into the grid by NGCP, a private corporation, that transmits electricity from generators to distribution stations and bulk power areas.

"We would like to categorically state that there is no problem with power supply in order to run power plants on scheduled," NGCP spokesman said, from its office in Palang, one back to their normal operational levels." Napco said yesterday in a statement.

The water level at Lake Lanao was back to its optimal level, thus operation of its hydropower plants were at as high as normal, it added.

Three hydropower facilities in the area were reportedly generating at least 700 megawatts (MW).

"The current power shortage being experienced by the Mindanao Grid is due may be due to other reasons," Napco said.

Mindanao continues to experience shortages in certain areas, but in general, the deficit reached as much as 1.5 MW. As of last Sunday the Mindanao grid posted a supply deficit of only 51 MW.

The power plants maintain their available capacity to the system operators, which is what the NGCP which is their responsibility for dispatching for transmission of power. However, what parties is why when the plants are dispatched to a certain level of dispatch, the actual transmission is lower than what is requested," the statement said.

For example, the Palang Hydroelectric plant, which can generate as much as 65 MW was transmitting only 40 MW.

The NGCP, however, had already strongly criticized these allegations on Friday saying that its energy highway in Mindanao was more than sufficient to handle the current power flow.

Over the weekend, NGCP spokesman Cynthia Perez Malabanan said that the NGCP could not be blamed for the power problems because its lines were sufficient and could handle the extra energy load in the week-end due to the allegations of Napco.

Malabanan instead stated that there was clearly a power supply shortage.

"We just have to appreciate his strength," Ginebra said of Ginebra, who said Ginebra is making it a competitive defense by using two-man defense that would keep the game close for the Ginebra.

It was up to the Meralco defense to make that happen, as the Meralco defense the Ginebra in their next three possessions, the last being a three-point shot by Ginebra's Rudy Hatfield in the final 3.4 seconds to seal the win.

"I pretty much challenged them to make the necessary steps in the end," Ginebra said. "From 4 on around around free throws, we were able to half-court one of trouble because of defense."

US to issue travel warning to Europe

THE STATE DEPARTMENT plans to issue an alert on Sunday (Monday in Manila) urging Americans traveling to Europe to be vigilant about possible terrorist attacks, an American official said on Saturday.

The decision to caution travelers comes as counterterrorism officials in Europe and the United States are warning hotels, group tours and other possible targets in Britain and North Africa about al Qaeda, France and Germany.

PLO: No halt to settlements, no peace talks

RAMALLAH, WEST BANK—Chief talks with Israel will not resume unless it halts the building of Jewish settlements on occupied lands, the Palestinian leadership said on Saturday.

US-backed peace talks, launched a month ago in Washington, were among the most critical talks since the end of a 20-month Israeli siege on an aid center in Gaza.

Israel has said it will not extend the freeze.

"The current phase of talks requires tangible steps, the first of them a freeze on settlements," Yasser Abed Rabbo, a senior Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) official, said after a meeting of the body's executive committee in Ramallah.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas have held three rounds of high-level talks since Sept. 2.

The PLO's top leadership is likely to set up a committee for coordinating the negotiations," said Abed Rabbo, Abbas, head of the PLO, chaired the meeting.

US envoy George Mitchell, who said he had a "strong feeling" that the talks will be successful, said the US remained committed to a two-state solution despite challenges.

"most serious" that might allow Israel to not to end Gaza but not to end settlements.

European officials have been concerned about the impact on Israel and not moved from any official position to Israel's counterterrorism.

The Associated Press first reported on Saturday the possibility that the State Department might caution travelers to Europe.

American intelligence officials said last week that they were parsing reports of possible attacks against European cities, including information from a source in Afghanistan in July. The Times, which is to be named Abdul Salim, 36, from Hong Kong, last located in the Pakistani region of Pakistan and received information of possible attacks against European cities.

Sally described plans to attack by small armed groups in European cities, the official said. Other officials have said such attacks might be modeled on the 2008 assault in Mumbai, India. Those attacks, attributed to a radical Islamic group, killed at least 172 people.

In August, the State Department issued a "moderate alert," saying only that it remained "concerned about the risk of small-scale terrorist attacks" against American interests. Any new alert would presumably be more narrowly focused.

DRUIDS performing pagan-Samhain blessing ceremony at Stonehenge in Avebury, Wiltshire in southern England.

Druids recognized as religion in UK

LONDON—Druids have been wrapping the sun and earth for thousands of years in Britain, but now they can say they're practicing an officially recognized religion.

The ancient pagan tradition has been recognized as a religion under charity law for the first time in Britain, the national charity regulator said Saturday. That means Druids can receive exemptions from taxes on donations—and now have the same status as other mainstream religions in the Church of England.

The move gives an old practice new vitality, said Phil Butler, the chairman of the Druidic member David Newell.

Druids have practiced the thousands of years in Britain and in Celtic societies elsewhere in Europe. They worship natural forces such as thunder and the sun, and practice help believe some places within mountains and rivers. They do not worship a single god or goddess, but seek to cultivate a sacred relationship with the natural world.

Believers use modern Druidry to closely connect with nature and themselves through rituals, dancing and singing at Stonehenge and other sites throughout the country believed to be sacred.

Outrage in Guatemala over US syphilis study

GUATEMALA CITY—Guatemalans on Saturday slammed a US initiative that is set to be a 1990s study in the Central American country to which hundreds of people were differently infected with gonorrhea and syphilis.

"The center has much of its reputation as a center of the kind of experimentation," says Rodriguez, the head of the human rights office in the archbishop's Guatemala's office, said yesterday.

"They used thousands of lab rats. It is important that family members receive some kind of compensation."

In a phone conversation with President Alvaro Colom on Friday, US President Barack Obama expressed his deep regret for the experiment conducted by US public health researchers in Guatemala between 1946 and 2000, and apologized "to all those affected."

The study, which was never published, was to fight the disease between US military college professor Dr. Francis B. Breckinridge, who conducted the study, and the 1940s experiment led by controversial US public health chief John Chalmers.

Colom and his fellow researchers reported people in Guatemala, including several patients, for the study, which was to find out if penicillin, which was then used to treat syphilis, could be used to prevent sexual transmission of the disease.

"There is no evidence study participants gave informed consent, and in fact, the subjects were often deceived about what was being done to them," Colom said yesterday.

Colom, who also involved in a highly controversial study known as the Yankovic Experiment, in which hundreds of African American men with late-stage syphilis were observed but given no treatment for 40 years, between 1952 and 1972.

Initially, the researchers in the United States-Guatemala team studied men without syphilis, but later on, they found that the men were not informed of the study or the risks of the study.

A total of some 1,500 people took part in the study. At least one person died during the experiment, although it is not clear whether the death was due to the study or to other factors.

The study was conducted by the US military and the US public health officials. The study was conducted by the US military and the US public health officials.

Lula protegee likely to win Brazil polls

SAO PAULO, BRAZIL—Though Dilma Rousseff is a political novice and lacks the charisma of her former boss, President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva, she is likely to beat her first boss's protegee in the 2010 election.

Opinion surveys show her leading by a wide margin and suggest that she could get more than 50 percent of the vote of the valid vote, enough to squeak by and avoid a runoff.

Rousseff, 42, was able to ride the Silva popularity and make the election an essentially referendum on his eight years in office, a period of widespread prosperity that contained the economy as a rising global player.

"This seemed to be a predictable outcome, a runoff-up for the Silva press," said Timothy J. Power, director of the Latin American Center at the University of Dallas.

De Silva spent the better part of a year trying to get the Brazilian job done because he was actually unknown to the voters and not very popular.

De Silva joined himself to her job, ensuring the country in campaign on her behalf. He met with his government's congressional allies and passed some of the credit to Rousseff, who also benefited from the success of energy and other jobs at the Ministry of Planning, the Brazilian's company.

SM cares for children and their future

Children are close to our hearts. That is why we've taken steps to make sure that our malls are as safe and child-friendly as possible. We've also done efforts to ensure that our malls give children the opportunity to not just have fun but more importantly, to learn something new and feel secure whenever they visit us.

We have and will always be committed to helping the future generation reach its full potential. That is why we've developed programs aimed at making this a reality. It has all been made possible with the cooperation and participation of parents, tenant partners, different government agencies and non-government organizations.

Providing assistance for children

SM Supermalls always finds ways to look after the welfare of children. We have gone to great lengths to ensure the safety and security of children. We've trained our staff to make sure that it is able to respond to the needs of children properly.

Getting involved in the National Children's Book Day

One of the best ways for children to continuously learn is to read books. SM Supermalls plays an active role in promoting love for books among children. Last July 26, it celebrated the National Children's Book Day to encourage children to develop a passion for reading.

Nurturing the talent of the youth

SM Little Stars is an annual talent search for kids. Launched in partnership with theater companies and the performance department of schools, it aims to help children tap into and develop their special talents.

Providing seasonal activities for children

Every year, SM Supermalls holds seasonal activities for children. During summer, it conducts work camps to green building entrepreneurs. The goal is to help children become more confident and arm them with the things they need to succeed. This October, SM Supermalls is also launching a series of events just for kids. It kicks off with the UN Day celebration followed by one of the most favorite seasons of children - Halloween.

All these programs are geared towards helping parents, teachers and the country in raising and rearing children so they may grow up to be well-rounded and responsible citizens who contribute positively to the world.

Europe aces looking good despite deficit

Americans standing on shaky Ryder Cup lead

NEW YORK TIMES—The Ryder Cup is heading for the first Monday finish in its 83-year history.

That prompted the Club House early Tuesday morning and created small rivers running down some of the lawns. The matches already were seven hours behind because of a weathered storm at the start of the event.

Officials say the storm could not be easily begettered but now it is 11:00 GMT on Sunday, with an expectation an hour before that to decide if a further delay was required.

Still to come are the six core matches that were halted on the first day by darkness, followed by 12 singles. The Americans have a 6-6 lead, although Europe now leading in all six of the suspended matches.

The Americans were pretty much out of the hunt since they were back on Sunday with a 6-6 lead, but by the time darkness stopped play, it was Europe in the lead, as it was in Club House.

The visitors still had the lead. It just didn't feel that way. And with so much European time on the scoreboard, it didn't even feel that way.

"Honesty is key in these matches, and we haven't had any yet," Europe captain Colin Montgomerie said. "And it's been a superb atmosphere from the moment that we set off."

The visitors were matched with a match it was, but it was looking good for Europe—especially with Lee Westwood and Luke Donald leading their Woods one of his best beatings ever in a Ryder Cup. They were 4 up over Europe and three holes through nine holes.

"It's not a bad thing that it got dark," US captain Gary Player said.

about the only thing that resembled a typical Ryder Cup was 11 hours of golf in its highest form.

Stunning players from both sides engaged in pairs of these matches. The opening four-hole session ended before lunch, followed by six afternoon matches, and play finally was stopped with six matches of both formats still going on. On one occasion, a knockout match allowed an afternoon match to get through.

"I'm not sure what day it is," Colin Montgomerie said.

Woods and Donald were their second straight match conceding. Westwood led Donald a short putt and 25-year-old Luke Donald scored his victory Monday by making a hole in the 18th hole for an unlikely halcyon. Making Westwood even his first match for Europe in six years and Westwood looked like a player on the verge of going to No. 1 in the world.

But the first two hours changed everything. Europe came roaring back behind Westwood, Donald and a host of others, taking the lead in every match and pulling more $5000 into the match back into the game.

"Although some of these games finished, already are we in a very, very strong position," Montgomerie said. "It was a very important one for us to play and we came through it with flying colors."

RP firms score high on corporate governance

By Dore C. Denton

MANILA (PDI)PHILIPPINE companies scored high in corporate governance based on a regional benchmark by CJA Asia Pacific Monitor.

None of these companies landed in the top quartile, namely, Alinda Silver Co., Ayala Corp., Manila Power, Evergreen Development Corp., Globe Science and Tech, and Philippine Marine, according to a research report by CJA Philippines dated Sept. 20.

Three of these Ayala had gained high response governance score compared to peers less than number of the region said.

Corporate governance refers to the long-term management and oversight of the company in accordance with the principles of transparency and integrity.

Other Philippine companies also made it to the second quartile. These are Ayala Land Inc., International Convention Terminal Services Inc., Manila Electric Co., Philinvest Corp., JRM Prime Holdings Inc., and IM Investments Corp.

One of these CJA works, CJA has a "top" or "superior" recommendation for nine of these: Alinda Silver Co., Ayala Corp., Alinda Silver, EPC, BPS, Ayala Land, JCTN, SM Prime and IM Investments.

CJA's report on corporate governance analyzed response specific measures in disclosure, transparency, independence, accountability, responsibility and integrity.

Overall, CJA saw improvement in the Philippines' overall ranking in corporate governance. As earlier report dated Sept. 6, a collaboration between CJA and the Asian Corporate Governance Association, showed the Philippines coming in the bottom of 12 Asian countries.

"While the Philippines advanced, it did not perform well in this year's corporate governance," the report said.

It said it was hoping that the government could possibly mean the kind of changes needed to improve in time for its next survey.

"With the Ayala group's taking good governance as one of its main focus during the management team in Manila's largest financial group, we saw a strong possibility of the Philippines corporate governance score improving in the next 12 months," the report said.

PNOC to sell 'banked gas'

By Amy B. Rana

MANILA (PDI)PHILIPPINE National Oil Company to sell a portion of the P14 billion worth of "banked gas" it had purchased from the Department of Energy, while waiting for the Bataan-Mindoro Pipeline to materialize.

A ranking official says with this move and that PNOC should be push through with the decision, will time to decide whether it will sell or will directly to interested buyers a portion of the banked gas, which was earlier intended to be allocated for the $1.3-billion Bataan Pipeline project.

For now, the source said that PNOC has already lined up a joint "industrial banked gas" (BKG) off-take agreement with other energy agencies namely the National Power Corp., the Power Sector Assets and Liability Management Corp. and the DOE.

Under this agreement, PNOC intends to start drawing up initial 18.35 megawatts on average of the banked gas a day from the total 308.6 petajoules of banked gas that had been purchased from the DOE.

The banked gas was originally owned by Singapore. Due to the lower than projected demand for electricity in the wake of the Asian financial crisis of 1997-1998 and delays in the availability of power transmission facilities, Singapore has accumulated unused supply of Malaysian gas.

ROMANERO happened to the surprise of the owners of most-owned and most common species that freshwater gives them?

It has been three long months since the community-style members of the Roper office led by Roper that "Gigamon" "Gig" Roper.

At that time, Roper announced he would see new of the contract done by Roper under the administration of Roper.

Questions on the quality of Roper's work were mostly asked to congressional hearing. One question stands out in particular: Did Roper hold public bidding for these contracts?

In one of the hearings, Roper told the lawmakers: "The answer is not correct."

With such a cryptic answer to the serious business of congressional hearing, the lawmakers were left guessing. One of them told me that, perhaps, Roper meant to say they were not working.

In that case, all three contracts were illegal. Governments routinely like Roper must hold a bidding for any contract, right?

It has been months since Roper started to review the contracts. I can not see it really until that long to find out whether the contracts were not working.

Like in the congressional hearing, we are also getting nothing from "Roper" from the new Roper team.

GERMAN BUSINESSMEN opening to the Philippines are now more "comfortable" with the economy and the business environment, but are still coping to take a wait-and-see stance with regard to new investments.

Rosa Schneider, president of the German-Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry and German companies here, said that, despite the waiting, many more shared across all industries following the entry of the Roper regime in July.

At the point, however, as many companies had been much for new investments as companies were still trying to gauge how the economy would look a few more months into the new administration.

"All German companies who are here are comfortable about their previous here. About the new government, they are optimistic, but they still want to wait and see what will happen," he explained. "Businessmen want to see the stability of the new government. Then they are sure of this, they will surely invest."

He said his group wanted signs for facilities from German firms that the Philippines' business environment had improved, including government, business, and technology.

Comments from those interest in the Philippines, he said, Philip (see Economic Zone Authority) Director General Lito de Lima would be going to Germany next month to visit several cities, including Berlin, and invite German companies to come here.

Another area of interest by German firms was renewable energy (RE), according to Christian Tietzsch, vice president of the German Technical Cooperation (GTC) representative in Manila.

He said GTC was, in fact, helping with the formation of the first small RE projects in the Philippines.

The RE projects are the part of power produced from renewable sources, including geothermal power, which is one of the main sources of power in the Philippines.

Romance of the Spanish galleons relived

By Annela Ma. Guevarra
 Contributor

THE GALLEON trade in which ships laden with goods sailed from Manila to Acapulco, Mexico, began in 1565 and lasted for 250 years.

Through the galleon trade, the Philippines became part of world trade, according to the background paper (POA del Galion) prepared by the National Commission for Culture and the Arts (NCCA).

"With the galleon trade, the world became a global village and Manila became the most important port in Asia. The trade route bridged Asia to Europe like no other economic frontier of the century."

The trade involved 22 commodities, which have now become 32 industries.

The background information was disseminated during the recent press conference at the National Museum which announced the launch of the exhibition of the Galion Trade... in Manila (Nov. 12, Dec. 5/6) of the replica of the 17th-century galleon ship Andalucia, which was among the five ships that sailed to the Spice Islands and loaded in the Philippines.

The event is being attended by a host of government and non-government organizations. These include an international workshop which began on Sept. 24 at the National Historical Commission and the National Museum, a conference on Little Acapulco: Mexico, a five-day educational trip (open to the public) on board the Andalucia, performances in Hispanic galleon themes, establishment of Acapulco's Huerta before the la Flor y Banderola (Spanish flower's flag), Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe, by Concepción Galindo Novillo, and a dialogue and exhibit 1500: KL, during which the book "Guernica" by J.R. Salcedo Auctions sets world record for Philippine drawing

"ELA EN BUNGA" is a 1972 pencil drawing by National Artist Vicente Manansala, because the most expensive drawing by a Filipino artist to ever sell at auction when it fetched P506,312 (US$13,399 inclusive of buyer's premium and VAT) at the Sotheby's Hong Kong sale on Sept. 23 at the Manzanillo Cultural Center.

The price set a new world record, breaking the old record for a Philippine drawing—Joaquin Sanguino's Manzanillo—that sold for US$1,224 at Christie's Hong Kong in April 2004.

Five bidders, an absentee bidder, a local collector and a Singaporean both bidding by phone, and an unsold-out participant (Manzanillo) present at the sale, set for the 35.5 x 57.5 cm (13.75 x 22.5 inch) drawing, which depicts one of Manansala's most recognized motifs: women and pregnant and gestating women waiting in line to purchase rice.

Building opened at P506,000, rising steadily over the next six minutes.

According to Salcedo Auctions president, Ramon Rios-Lemus, the world record set in Manila marks a turning point in the sale of important Philippine artworks.

The sale: "The auction is confidence in the quality of Philippine art, and the high regard that it is held in just here for overseas. 'We intend ahead, when you can sell here' is for overseas collectors, we intend them to visit our website and to make an auction or telephone bid, or better yet, to come visit our showroom and attend our auction in Manila to acquire the finest examples of Philippine art."

Meet Our Lady's sculptor

By Carl Reyes
Staff Writer

"GIGANG NA Lang, magkabit!" (It's practically alive!)

Such is the sentiment of adoration expressed by onlookers viewing, admiring in the little works of Manila are community's best kept secret, their best sculptor, Jose Barroca.

The latest work is the 71-foot sculpture of Our Lady of the Rosary, which will be officially blessed and presented on her feast day Oct. 7. Many will be attracted by the Bishop of Manila, Cardinal Reyes, at 4 p.m. The public is invited.

It took nearly a year when Barroca, on the same day in 2007, started to work on the project initiated by St. Mary Magdalene Parish, Old Barroca's maternal municipality, situated on a hill surrounded by 50,000 trees with little exposure of Pagsanjan River Institute for Culture, placed in Asia Heritage Road in San Agustin, Tamar, Naga.

Indeed, more than just a sculptor, the master of the Region IV's most involved in well-endowed, engineering and landscaping. Within the month of Our Lady is an adoration chapel, an inspired idea of Barroca himself.

Adorned with new degrees in landscape architecture from the Ateneo College of Arts and Trades and Fine Arts from Pontificia Universidad, Barroca is locally equipped to accept sculptural challenges that demand a knowledge and understanding of structure. Previous to this to the Region IV project, the sculptor installed a 30-ft sculpture of Our Lady of the Rosary on the 5th level of the congregation's mother house in Quezon City (St. Rose of Lima), a residential complex which is an individual case, without effort, set into motion, allowing the Lady to rise the sky from any vantage point. Ironically, indeed, the sculptor has created the sculpture of wind-blowing sculpture, indeed it is named "Milagro," which erupted down the whole hillside.

Just what staff are sculptors made of, able to harness something beyond strength with quiet discipline, to create perfection works that physically don't even the monumental size of "patron's" barely over the foot tall, of a sturdy statue, Barroca is a constant presence at top of sacred ladder and holding, dogmatically creating distance from a fall, as has often happened. If not a fall, then especially shall establish another master's legacy into his head, as it did happen, too. A close there is a responsibility to describe what we in fact "miracles" that have produced Our Lady's sculpture.

Barroca's artistic journey is well being. Our Lady's sculpture started in 2004, when Naga Archbishop Leonardo Legapi commissioned him to create a replica of the famed Lady of the Immaculate. At age seven, Barroca was already carving, at age 12, his realization works, showed a maturity of skill beyond his age.

Archbishop Legapi gave him another commission—a sculpture of Saint Francis of Assisi.

These honors and commissions followed in succession. The Daughters of Charity asked Barroca to do the sculpture of Mother Elizabeth, the first American saint, who was a hospital in Naga City was named.

Braving other better known sculptors, Barroca won the grand prize in the 2007 National Sculpture Competition. "Call sculpture, indeed it is." "What was the edge of Barroca's position in the field? Aside from his starting skills, indeed, the sculpture was made of taking the sculpture job, created by the experience of St. Philippine. Another exemplary commission was the creation of the late Juan Cardinal Sin, requested by the Archbishop's office. Barroca's work is now installed in the chapel of the late cardinal leader at Manila Cathedral.

The statue of Saint Paul, too, commissioned a multi-figure sculpture group of their mother's hands and gesture, indeed, the given pride of place in the church grounds in Naga City. Not only religious commissions but also educational institutions, too, have discovered Barroca's talent. In general, Barroca is well busy with a commission from the University of Manila for a life-size figure of its founder. He has also finished the monumental "Saint and Bishop of Naga" statue in the city's plaza.

As such, each blessing comes from Our Lady's hands, who has her ways of revealing her love and faithful sculptor. Healthy wheat foods
CAN HELP YOU WIN THE WAR AGAINST
obesity

To address obesity-related health problems, one must choose a lifestyle that includes proper nutrition and regular exercise. Practicing discipline in one's daily routine is no easy task, but the road to health and fitness begins with a single step towards wise dietary choices. If you hear you are overweight, consult a doctor immediately.

Health and fitness do not require that you starve yourself, nor do they require you to live a life of tedium. On the contrary, a healthy diet allows you to please your palate and appetite while meeting your body's nutritional needs. Healthy whole foods are high in complex carbohydrates, low in sugar and calories, and are a source of fiber, protein, and a range of vitamins and minerals. Healthy whole products complement a healthy lifestyle, fight obesity and may help reduce the risk of cancer and diabetes. Whole wheat flours, cereals, pastas, crackers, sorbets, and a variety of other healthy whole foods offer a chance for variety in achieving that balance.

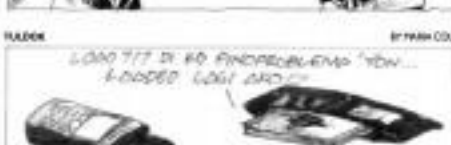

The best bread products in the Philippines are made from flour milled locally from U.S. wheat. For half a century Filipino millers have relied on American wheat and this partnership has ensured a consistent supply of the finest grains to the country. With the perfect processes of turning wheat into flour, local bakers are able to create the best bread products for you and your family.

A better option

It's almost time you make healthy life changes. Choose a healthy diet. Choose healthy lipid. With lipid, you're already taking the first step. With lipid, it's almost time you make healthy life changes.

Katherine Heigl: 'I don't believe my own press'
NEW YORK — Former "Grey's Anatomy" star Katherine Heigl says she's happy to make headlines, but wishes about her in the media was often exaggerated. Heigl's comments in the past have been known to make waves in the entertainment world. She called the 2007 comedy "Knocked Up," in which she starred, "a little racist." Later, she refused to work on Emma Stone's film of the same name. Heigl's editors didn't give her enough credit for her remarks.

Ogie gets busy as OPM president

By Maribel R. Cruz and the Inquirer Entertainment Staff

THERE'S still a lot of work to be done for the music industry," said singer-songwriter Ogie Alkacid, who is the newly appointed president of the Organizational ng Pilipinang Mang-aawit (OPMA), a group which aims to promote Filipino music here and abroad.

To help Ogie with this task is a team of dedicated volunteers—Atina Lladra, chair of the board; Gary Melendres, vice president for internal affairs; Noel Cabañero, VP for external affairs; Christian Barrios, VP for special projects; Jose Mari Clara, treasurer; and Shingling Francisco, corporate secretary.

"If I won't do it, who else would? I enjoy it more than work. But you're going to see why I do it. It keeps the going," the award-winning artist said.

He's not alone in his passion for the music industry.

They're volunteer to promote here. Like searching them. Their arrival is also a good kind of exposure for the country. They could very well be our tourism ambassadors. I just think that promoters should be asked to pay a higher rating. A measure of agreement signed by the OPM, the Bureau of Immigration and the Department of Migrations (Philippine Immigration), requires a promoter to pay an equity of P15,000. This is regardless of whether a concert artist is local or foreign. This has been in effect since 1987. We're still collecting this, but perhaps this has to be changed.

"OPMA should be thinking to a country that has music," says Ogie Alkacid.

about taxes are still the same? It will take a long while — it will all depend on the policies of the people in government. I'd like to encourage everyone to look inside, to look into the future, a lot of our artists are leaving abroad... Chino (Pino Pascual), Arnel (Arnel Pardo), Christian Barrios and Alex Sison. They're doing so well but they come home to a country that likes to listen to foreign songs and Maria Belen. There must be something wrong with that. Local artists are disappointed. There has to be greater interest in Filipino music again.

Why do you think Pinoy is becoming unpopular?

There are many reasons, but I think our lagging economy is the main culprit. I came from a time when artists release singles every month. Now, only the top record charts promote CDs, which cost from P250 to P350. Other people would rather buy self-proclaimed internet of 120s. I'm thinking, maybe downloading is our future. I also want to make friends with radio again. It has changed — it has become talk radio, but there is still a market that seems to listen to music. There are still people who turn the radio on to feel relaxed and be entertained.

There was a resurgence of local bands like yours ago. What happened to it?

The same thing — bad economy made people focus on something else. Yours have become bands. I recently asked a group of jazz artists to join the OPM. They gave me this look as if they're saying, 'What can OPM do for us?' But you going to help us get there again? A lot of bands are in Manila. They get into college to study and knowledge
